INTRODUCTION

The University provides its staff members, students and authorised visitors (collectively known as ‘Users’) with access to information and communication technologies to enhance and support their learning, teaching, research, administrative and service functions. In particular, access to information communication technologies (ICT) and devices, is provided to enable networking and access to worldwide information resources. With this access comes obligations, limitations, responsibility and accountability.

All Users should be aware of this policy and associated procedures, responsibilities and legal obligations. All Users are required to comply with this policy and are bound by law to observe applicable legislation. Like all University assets and services, the information and communication technologies in all their various forms, should be used in an efficient, lawful and ethical manner.

The University has a legitimate right to capture and inspect any data stored or transmitted on the University’s ICT facilities (regardless of data ownership) when investigating system problems or potential security violations; and to maintain system security and integrity; and to prevent, detect or minimise unacceptable behaviour on that facility. Such data will not be released to persons within or outside of the University, except in response to the circumstances described in the University’s Handling Suspected Cases of Unacceptable Use of Information and Communication Technologies Procedures.

STATEMENT OF AUTHORITY

The authority behind this policy is the Charles Darwin University Act 2003 (NT) part 3, section 15.

INTENT

The intention of this document is to outline the University’s policy on the acceptable use of all information and communication technologies within the University.

This document and the associated procedures apply to all staff members, students and authorised visitors of the University.

RELEVANT DEFINITIONS

In the context of this document:

Adjunct or honorary staff means staff members who are associated with the University by appointment under the Honorary Appointments Procedures and through the Nominations, Honorary Awards and Legislative Committee;

Alumni means graduates of the University or its predecessor institutions;
Authorised visitor means bona fide visitors that the University may, from time to time, provide with access to facilities to enhance their ability to complete tasks for the University or to liaise with the University. Such visitors may include, but are not limited to: emeritus, adjunct or honorary academic staff members; alumni; external auditors or consultants; potential clients or business partners; contractors or vendors; conference delegates; and students and staff of other universities with reciprocal arrangements;

Governing documents means a FORMALLY APPROVED document that outlines non-discretionary governing principles and intentions, in order to guide University practice. Governing documents are a formal statement of intent that mandate principles or standards that apply to the University’s governance or operations or to the practice and conduct of its staff and students they include the CDU Act, by-laws, policies, procedures, guidelines, rules, codes, the Strategic Plan and the Enterprise Agreement;

Information and Communication Technologies refers collectively to computers, printers, facsimiles, telephones (both mobile and landlines), scanners, photocopiers, email, internet, intranet, web services, blogs, twitter, wiki, social networking sites e.g. Facebook pages, portable electronic devices and any other similar resources;

Internet includes the University intranet and network;

Significant promulgation means the distribution of material to a wide audience;

Staff member means anyone engaged by or associated with the University and includes all permanent, casual, adjunct, honorary or contracted staff (whether full-time or part-time), volunteers or those holding University offices or who are a member of a University committee; and

User means any staff member, student enrolled at the University and authorised visitors to the University.

POLICY

The University ICT are provided fundamentally for education, research and work purposes. However, the University will accept limited and reasonable personal use of its information and communication facilities, if it is in all respects otherwise compliant with this policy, provided such use is:

- Infrequent;
- Occasional;
- Trivial in terms of amount of University resources used;
- Does not interfere with performance of the User’s work, studies or other University responsibilities; and
- Is not for personal commercial purposes, private commercial gain or for the significant promulgation of private beliefs unless used in connection with any one or more of these purposes is clearly required by the User’s work, studies or other University responsibilities.

All other personal use of the University’s information and communication technologies will be deemed to be “unacceptable use” (Refer to Handling Suspected Cases of Unacceptable Use of Information and Communication Technologies Procedures and Identifying Unacceptable Use of Information and Communication Technologies Procedures)

All Users must be aware of and note that the University regards activities that constitute unacceptable use as potentially serious matters which the University is free to address by resorting to the applicable staff and student disciplinary procedures; reference to law enforcement agencies; or otherwise as it may see fit in the particular circumstances.

Unacceptable activities include, but are not limited to, the following:

- System Misuse;
• System Abuse;
• Code of Conduct Contravention;
• Copyright Infringement;
• Intentionally viewing, downloading, copying or storing pornography;
• Equipment Abuse or Misuse; and/or
• Security Breaches.

NOTE: Each of these activities deemed to be “unacceptable use” of the University’s information and communication technologies is defined in detail in the Identifying Unacceptable Use of Information and Communication Technologies Procedures.

Privacy and User Activity

The University seeks to comply with privacy requirements and confidentiality in the provision of all ICT services, but privacy and confidentiality cannot be assured. Users must know that the security of data and networks can be breached – most people respect the security and privacy protocols, but a determined person can breach them.

Users must also be aware that network and systems administrators, during the performance of their duties, need to observe the contents of certain data, on storage devices and in transit, to ensure proper functioning of the University’s ICT facilities.

Users must also be aware that systems’ logs of user activity are kept for troubleshooting and accounting purposes. These logs may include times of sent and received mail; email addresses (both sender and recipient), web sites visited and size and type of pages downloaded, files read or written; and machines accessed for any type of network service. The University retains the right to use this information for summary reporting purposes.

The University’s policy and statutory obligations relating to privacy will be upheld in all cases. For further information on privacy, refer to the University’s Information Privacy Policy. However, any privacy element may be subordinate to the application of law or policy, including this policy and relevant Northern Territory and Commonwealth Government legislation.

Reporting and Investigation

Users are encouraged to report suspected breaches of this policy to their supervisor, lecturer, teacher or an appropriate senior University officer (for example, if aware that someone has used another’s personal account or someone is downloading or viewing offensive or illegal material). For further information on how to identify suspected breaches of this policy refer to the Identifying Unacceptable Use of Information and Communication Technologies Procedures.

The University will support and protect from acts of reprisal any User who, in good faith, reports suspected breaches of this policy or others. All such reports will be treated as confidential and receipt of the complaint will be acknowledged. Any information that is disclosed will be properly investigated.

The Director, ITMS has such authority as is available under Australian law and under University governing documents to direct specific staff within ITMS (or request external parties) to undertake regular system monitoring to detect or investigate suspected cases of unacceptable use of the University information and communication technologies.

Any impropriety revealed by the investigation will be actioned through the relevant University staff and student disciplinary procedures and may include notifying external law enforcement authorities, should that be deemed necessary.
Disclaimer

The University accepts no responsibility for any damage to, or loss of, personal or work data, hardware or software, arising directly or indirectly from unacceptable use of the University's information and communication facilities or for any consequential loss or damage. The University makes no warranty, express or implied regarding the facilities offered, or their fitness for any particular purpose. Any individual who uses the University's information and communication technologies in an unacceptable manner will personally be liable for any consequential loss or damage.

NOTE: As all Users will be bound by this policy and supporting documentation, a username and password for the system will not be issued until these documents have been read and accepted.
